AMERICAN PEOPLE MUST CONSERVE TO SAVE WORLD

MILLIONS WILL PERISH UNLESS FOOD IS SENT AT ONCE, F. B. MUMFORD SAYS.

OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE

We Must Now Direct Our Vast Resources to Feeding Hungry Nations of Europe, He Declares.

The people of America have conserved to win the war; they must now conserve to save the world, F. B. Mumford, federal food administrator for Missouri, declared in a message to the county food administrators and chairmen of women's committees. We must now attempt to develop among our people a world conscience in place of a war conscience, he said. Our conservation slogan from now on must be world relief.

"The work of the Food Administration is not yet ended," said Mr. Mumford. "We have still to protect our own people and the helpless and destitute peoples of Europe from the sordid and conscienceless conspiracies of the profiteers. We must not relax the efforts which have been so successful in accomplishing this desirable result."

"It should be a matter of the utmost satisfaction to all who have had a part in the administration of the food problems of America, that they have been able not only to protect our own people from suffering, but that we have provided sufficient supplies of food for all our Allies. This is in marked contrast to the food conditions of the Central Powers and their allies. In all the countries directly allied with the Central Powers, food conditions have been extremely serious from the beginning. If the food policies of the German empire had brought misery and suffering only for their own people, we would not be materially concerned; but the German empire has not only reduced its own people to starvation but millions of the inhabitants of innocent nations bordering the German empire have died of starvation; they have stolen their food supplies and left them destitute."

"It is our duty from the standpoint of humanitarianism alone to continue our efforts to relieve the suffering of the world until such time as nations can be re-established and the normal industries of the world again put in motion."

"The conservation measures of the Food Administration have made possible the successful feeding of our army and the civilian population of the Allies and neutrals. America is now presented with the still greater opportunity to demonstrate her unselfish devotion to the cause of freedom and human happiness. We must now direct our vast resources to the feeding of the world. Our response to this plea must be instant. The food is needed now. We must export great quantities of food supplies before the next harvest if we are to prevent the starvation of peoples with the consequent anarchy which will follow. Starvation is the mother of anarchy. We have conserved to win the war; we must now conserve to save the world."

TWO WAYS OF REGARDING HUNGER

"Starvation must serve our purpose. So we set it to work for Germany. By starvation we can accomplish in two or three years in Poland more than we have in West Poland, which is East Prussia, in the last hundred years. With that in view, we propose to turn this force to our advantage."

—General Von Kries of the German Army (1915).

"In addition to the supplying of those to whom we are already pledged, we now have the splendid opportunity and obligation of meeting the needs of those millions of people in the hitherto occupied territories who are facing actual starvation. The people of Belgium, Northern France, Serbia, Rumania, Montenegro, Poland, Russia and Armenia rely upon America for immediate aid."

"The American people, in this most critical period of their history, have the opportunity to demonstrate not only their ability to assist in establishing peace on earth, but also their consecration by self-denial, to the cause of suffering humanity."—Herbert Hoover (1918).

TO FEED GERMANY BY RAISING SOME ECONOMIC BARS

PROBLEM IS ONE OF LIFTING BLOCKADE, NOT GOING TO RELIEF OF HUNS.

WE MUST PREVENT ANARCHY

Greatest Task is to Provide Food for Liberated Peoples of Europe, Hoover Says.

Will the people of this country be called upon to make sacrifices to deny themselves food, that Germany may be fed? This question has been asked frequently of the Missouri Division of the Food Administration.

Just before he sailed for Europe Mr. Hoover said that, according to the plans already made, Germany will be fed by economic measures which only contemplate the raising of a few embargo and shipping barriers. Our great task is to feed the liberated peoples of Europe, he said.

"There is a great problem in the situation of the enemy people, about twenty million," he said. "This problem is not one of going to their relief. It is a problem of relaxing the water-tight blockade, which continues through the armistice, sufficiently so that they may secure for themselves the bare necessities that will give stable government. Unless anarchy can be put down and stability of government can be obtained in these enemy states, there will be nobody to make peace with and nobody to pay the bill to France and Belgium for the fearful destruction that has been done."

"I would certainly approach this problem with mixed feelings, having been long a witness to the robbery of food from women and children, and the destruction of millions of tons of food at sea and to the misery under which millions amongst the big and little Allies have suffered under the German yoke."

"I am going to Europe to discuss the further food measures that must be organized as a result of the cessation of hostilities. The food problem in Europe today is one of extreme complexity. Of their 420 million, practically only three areas—South Russia, Hungary and Denmark—comprising about forty million, have sufficient food supplies to last until next harvest without imports. Some must have immediate relief."

"With transportation and financial demoralization, the tendency is for peasants to cease marketing ever their surplus and thus instant difficulties are projected into the cities even when resources are available in the country. The peasant and villages of Europe always provides for himself for the whole year in any event."

"Arrangements have long since been completed by which the big Allies France, England and Italy, will be provisioned. This covers 125 million people."

"Our first and deepest concern now must be for the little Allies who were under the German yoke, the Belgians, the Serbians, Rumanians, Greeks, Czechs, Jugo-Slavs and others. There are some seventy-five million people in these groups, and they must be systematically helped and at once. We have already doubled the stream of food flowing toward Belgium."

"Our next concern must be to relax blockade measures as far as possible in order that the neutral states of Europe, which are now all on short rations, should be able to take care of their people and prevent the growth of anarchy. This is another group of about forty million."

"Another problem lies in the fifty million people in North Russia, a large part of whom are inaccessible owing to the breakdown of transportation and through sheer anarchy. Millions of these are beyond help this winter. These groups are the ones that must enlist the sympathy of the American people and for whom we are prepared to make necessary sacrifice."

In winning the war food proved an effective weapon; in keeping it won food will be our most valuable tool.

"We have saved the soul of civilization. Let us now proceed to care for its sick body."—General Jan Smuts.

THE RED CROSS IS REAL SERVICE

By FRANK MORRISON,
Secretary American Federation of Labor.

The work of the Red Cross is not confined to our boys on battlefield or in hospital nor amidst the ruins of Belgium and other portions of devastated Europe. One of its great activities is any necessary aid to the dependents of members of America's military forces.

On the battlefield the Red Cross presents an heroic figure. In America, removed from destruction and death, the Red Cross steps silently to the side of the father and mother whose boy is "over there" and who need counsel and aid.

No service is too small for the Red Cross. If allotments from the government or from their son are delayed, or information on the government's war risk insurance is wanted, the Red Cross is both counselor and friend. It enters into the home in the true spirit of charity—secrecy.

But first and foremost our soldiers in field and hospital must be given the most attentive care possible. Nothing we can do will equal their share in this movement for world democracy, and the Red Cross presents an opportunity for us to play our part in this great drama by contributing to the extent of our ability. The Red Cross appeals to organized workers because of its one quality—service.

Behind Red Cross service is an ennobling charity that is not defaced by cost marks, a democracy that personifies Jefferson's great principle of equality and a religion that is beyond sectarianism.

Looking Ahead.

A baby boy arrived one morning Hunter, three years old, had been given two billy goats for his last birthday. That morning his father said: "Now Hunter, you don't need two goats, suppose you give your little brother one. What do you say?" Hunter didn't say anything for a minute, then he said: "Father, I've been thinking it over, and I've decided maybe I'd better save that goat for my own little boy."

But They Don't Deceive Many. "Some men," said Uncle Eben, "makes portend dey's gettin' wisdom when dey's only loafin' around indulgin' deir curiosity."
